This comic drama is about a man called Humbert Satterthwaite who suffers from sticky feet, which is, to say the least, very inconvenient. He desperately wants his problem solved as he feels like a social blunder. The hospital across the street is too frightening so Humbert tries several alternative treatments. However, no therapist is able to cure him. Humbert has no other option. He decides to face his fears and he calls the doctor to make an appointment. But after a completely disastrous episode in the hospital Humbert knows that he is better off trying to live with his handicap. Then he meets a short-sighted park keeper who thinks Humbert could make a brilliant assistant. But are the two of them really a good team?
